

Steve Kelly is a marketing leader with extensive experience driving strategic growth for major global organisations. He specialises in building collaborative, high-performing teams and delivering integrated communication strategies across brand, PR, and digital platforms. As a parent with a son at Dr South’s, Steve translates this professional expertise into his role as a governor by supporting the school’s strategic planning and community engagement. He is particularly focused on ensuring the school’s identity is clearly communicated and that the governing body provides the strategic oversight necessary to meet the school's evolving goals. Steve is committed to working alongside staff and parents to ensure Dr South’s continues to nurture, educate, and inspire every child to lead life in all its fullness.